

vandaveer

Vandaveer is the gloomy indie-folk pop solo project of Apparitions frontman Mark Heidinger. When he isn't on the road with The Apparitions, his five-piece golden pop rock outfit from the great state of Kentucky, this Washington, DC-based singer/songwriter moonlights as Vandaveer showcasing his penchant for stark, moody acoustic songs about love, death, fire, water, and other basic elements of life. Sporting a strong affinity for the seedy, theatrical grit of Tom Waits, the lyrical wit of Bob Dylan, and the pure pop prowess of early solo McCartney records, Vandaveer humbly nods to all three strumming and plucking away at sparsely arranged acoustic numbers filled with vivid imagery and arresting melodies.

Vandaveer is also a founding member of The Federal Reserve, a nascent Washington, DC-based collective of hopeless romantics, vagabonds, and underground musicians bound together by love of song and country. Vandaveer is American pop. Folk pop. The good kind.

Vandaveer's debut release on Machine Records is due in May, 2006.
